The girls spent the week in sports of all kinds, including bathing, cycle riding and ball playing. Two campfires were held on the premises of Marshall Frink, at which ghost stories were told, and one evening two veritable ghosts appeared. The girls chased them for 15 minutes until they disappeared. The warhoop was sounded and the war dance began around the blazing fire. Many visitors from the neighborhood were present, as well as blazing fire. Many visitors from the neighborhood were present, as well as from Brooklyn. The neighbors all through the week showed their interest by contributing to the rations of the girls. Over 70 people visited the camp during the week. The girls were so well pleased that they are talking seriously of building permanent barracks. No better organization exists for girls.

Bowen is well known:

Henry E. Bowen resigned his position last week from the advertising department of the New York Herald after a connection of twenty years with that publication. Mr. Bowen comes from a newspaper family of three generations in New York his grandfather, Lewis Tappan, being the founder of the Journal of Commerce, and his father, Henry C. Bowen, of the Independent. His first newspaper work was as publisher of the Brooklyn Union, previous to its being known as the Standard Union. He was also connected with the Cosmopolitan magasine during its ownership by John Bresben Walker, and later with the Mail and Express and placed in charge of the Brooklyn department by the late Col. Elliott F. Shepard. On Oct. 1, 1896, Mr. Bowen was en-saged by Albert Fox, advertising manager of the New York-Herald, and he has remained with that paper until the present time. Dear Editor and Friends of The Corner: It surely is some time since I have written to The Curner, and in response to many inquiries regarding my silence I will now write you while I have an abundance of leisure, sitting here on the rocks, the water splashing all around me, here on the rocky coast of Maine. This is a grand and won-derful place to the lover of nature. The scene is ever changeful from the placid waters of the ocean to the boisterous waves as they dash in fury against the gigantic mass of stone, or upon the pebbly beach; and on its surface can always be seen steamers and boats of every kind.

Here and there are many islands, and one could easily imagine they were among the Thousand Islands.

One of the views I have is of the land rising up from the water's edge from twelve to fifteen hundred feet Everywhere are evergreen trees and beautiful cottages nestled close to the water's edge, or situated on cliffs among the evergreen trees.

Such mammoth rocks and cliffs! One stands appalled before them—such a harmless thing as a drop of water, but the combination of many wears such frightful chasms and caves in solid rock that we realize the statement that "constant dripping wears away a

GERMAN THEATER OPENED IN CONSTANTINOPLE With a Cast of Turkish Actors Under

German Leaders.

Constantinople, Aug. 6.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—A German theatre has just been opened here, and bids fair to be as popular as any Turkish house. A cast of Turkish actors, under German leadership, is engaged in mastering and presenting classical German plays, as well as a number of comedies, in the Turkish language.

Parts of Fanse, Schiller's The Robbers, and William Tell, as well as an excellent translation of Goethe's Egmont, have been successfully given thus far. Heretofore the modern Turkish theatres have presented almost exclusively, French drama, and with small success. The great tide of pro-German feeling in Constantinople at present is materially aiding the new venture.

AVIATOR THAW ASSIGNED TO HAZARDOUS WORK Detailed to Locate German Batteries Behind the First Lines.

Paris, Aug. 6,—William Thaw of Pittsburgh, who is serving as an avi-ator in the French army, has just re-ceived his third citation in the orders of the day. He has been detailed to the dangerous work of locating and observing German batteries often sit-uated two or three miles behind the

His lieutenant observer ordered him to keep straight ahead at the same level, as other-wise he could not make accurate calahead at the same level, as otherwise he could not make accurate calculations. A moment later one shell exploded but a short distance in front of them, and the third one directly behind. A piece of shrapnel carried away a portion of the tail and for a moment the machine appeared lost. Thaw soon succeeded in righting it, regaining control, turned, and after passing through a hot rifle fire landed safely inside the French lines. The general commanding the division, who witnessed the feat, asked to be presented to the aviator as he wished to compliment him. Thaw was immediately brought before the general, who, shaking him by the hand, warmly congratulated him upon his bravery and coolness and promised him that his gallant action would not go unnoticed. The following morning the eitation appeared in the orders of the day.
